

Daniel Kobina Okwan

I am Daniel Kobina Okwan. I graduated from the Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST) with first class in Medical Laboratory Technology in July, 2017 after starting my university education in September, 2013. Aside being interested in academic excellence, I am also interested in the well being of my community, I therefore engage in voluntary services in my community and beyond. I have been instrumental in raising good students in my hometown, Abakrampain the Central Region of Ghana through quality teaching during the summer vacations and this has made me popular in my hometown. I believe in what Educational Pathways International (EPI) teaches us, which is, giving back to our community. And that is exactly what I have been doing.

Over the past four years in the university, I undertook health outreaches in some hinterlands of the Ashanti region of Ghana as part of my contribution to the society.

In future, I would like to be one of the outstanding Biomedical Scientist in the country to provide authentic diagnoses and prognoses to diseases in the country. I want to establish a health facility in my community for healthcare delivery and consultancy. Teaching is my ultimate passion and hence I would like to further my education and become a great Lecturer in the future.
