

Vincent Abe-Inge

I am Vincent Abe-Inge, a BSc. Food Science and Technology graduate of the Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology, Ghana. It is my desire to become not just a Lecturer but also a Researcher in the field of food science. It is my goal to contribute significantly to combat food insecurity through innovative research. I am therefore very delighted to be part of this family Educational Pathways International (EPI) that is gradually making my dreams come into reality.

Educational Pathways International did not only give financial support in my academic journey but also served as a source of encouragement and inspiration in my life. The love EPI has shown to me has greatly inspired me to give back to society. For this reason I am currently working and hope to continue to work to provide solar systems to rural schools in Ghana without electricity starting with my primary school in the Ejura-Sekyedumase District in the Ashanti Region of Ghana.

I have also planned to play a coaching role in the lives of the High School students in Ghana. This is to help in motivating, guiding and leading high school students into achieving their academic goals. Therefore, it is my desire to organize motivational seminars or programmes in at least two of these schools annually in the near future.

Joining EPI family has actually shaped me to bring all these aspirations into reality. In fact, I must say I am very blessed to be part of this family.
