

ABEL DAARTEY

I am Abel Daartey. I studied Doctor of Pharmacy at Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST) in Ghana. I am highly elated to have had the opportunity to be on the scholarship programme of this generous non-profit Organization, Educational Pathways International (EPI). This organization offers the best of package to brilliant and gifted students from homes of financial challenge at some selected universities in Ghana.

One weighty thing I have gained from EPI is the annual vacation training (Internships) that we were being made to embark on. It has enlightened me in a broad spectrum on how my future career of being a Pharmacist will be like.

As part of my career goals, I am working hard to become a professional Clinical Pharmacist. I intend to specialize in Ghana College of Pharmacist in order to become the best that I could be. This would enhance my reaching to the health care needs of the people and as well be a seven-star Pharmacist.

I also intend to embark on health education to sensitize the public on good health practices. I wish to also, serve my people by working in the community pharmacy.

My family and I would forever be indebted to EPI for contributing massively to my career development and life journey.

In summary, EPI is the best in reaching to the needs of brilliant and needy students.