

CHARLES SAMBO

My name is Charles Sambo, an energetic, hardworking and an ambitious individual with a great passion for the healthcare delivery sector.

I studied BSc. Nursing at the University for Development Studies, Tamale-Ghana.

I gained excellent therapeutic communication skills that have helped me to prioritize the physical, mental and emotional wellbeing of my patients and identify patient's needs in providing adequate care.

As a nursing student, I was eager to learn, work and make the right decisions under pressure with little or no flaws. I enjoy overcoming life challenges that come my way with a positive mind-set and hence self-motivationally without giving up easily.

In spite of all, my dream of becoming a Nurse, my potentials would have remained unearthed if not for the intervention of Educational Pathways International who brought me hope when all hope was lost by financing my education with a full scholarship so I could finish my programme of study.

My major academic goal is that one day I would like to be a Cardiologist to save the lives of people with heart diseases.

I cannot tell my story without mentioning EPI as the key contributor to fulfilling my career goal. I really appreciate this massive support and I pray that the Lord bless you even as you continue to put smiles on the faces of the less privilege ones like me. Thank you.
