

ISAAC AMPONSAH

My name is Isaac Ampomah. I studied Doctor of Pharmacy at Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST), Kumasi, Ghana.

At the early stages of my junior high school education, I had a surge in my desire to pursue a career in health. My huge interest in chemistry as a subject in senior high school created in me a loving desire to pursue a career that combines health and chemistry, hence my choice of Doctor of Pharmacy. The prime reason for which I enjoy my programme is that it will give me the opportunity to be a member of the healthcare team. Secondly, with chemistry being one of the backbones of the programme, I have enjoyed almost all my lectures from year one.

I look forward to joining one of the few clinical Pharmacists in our country where I can put into practice the knowledge gained throughout my study period towards providing optimal pharmaceutical care to patients at the hospital. At the same time, I would also want the community within which I live to benefit from my practice by being at the community Pharmacy where at the first point of contact, I can help provide adequate primary care to those living in my vicinity and beyond.

Doing a comprehensive retrospection of what has transpired in the past few years, I am glad to say that, I would not have been able to come this far had it not been for Educational Pathways International (EPI). Life was very hard for me before then. I had difficulty paying my tuition fees, difficulty paying accommodation fees, difficulty in feeding, and others. Literally, I feared I was going to drop out of school.

But Educational Pathways International (EPI) came to my rescue and rekindled my hope. They made me believe that when I press on, one day I can also put smiles on the faces of people like me.

Apart from the financial support, EPI has also taught me great lessons that are indispensable in this world. I look at who, how and where I am today, and with a gladsome heart, all that I say is: "Thank you, Educational Pathways International! I am glad you are part of my story. Your immense support to me is very much appreciated."
