

Jonathan Alidu Salifu

Educational Pathways International, which supports needy but brilliant students, really made my path through KNUST a success.

EPI took away the burden of having to think of how to pay my fees, how to feed, and, more importantly, supported me in getting books to study.

EPI advocates for good grades. This made it possible and motivated me to graduate with first class honours in Electrical/Electronic Engineering.

EPI is a family to me. One thing I really like about EPI is the unity within its members even after graduation we still hold meetings to discuss how to help our community and we also receive messages from our sponsors and coordinators.

With the support of EPI through its community service, I can now speak in public. This has been of immense help to me during my national service with Ghana Grid company since we give presentations during safety meetings. EPI also gave me the medium to reach out to the people in my community so as to help.

I thank EPI very much for the impact it has played in my life, not only academically but also in all spheres through its guidance and support and its selfless dedication to mankind.

