Lingering in my memory is the timely intervention of EPI when the path to academic success was gloomy by reason of financial challenges.

Through the support of EPI, I was well founded to unleash my innermost potentials and hence achieving real excellence during my bachelor studies at Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology.

Aside from the financial aid, I have come to appreciate EPI to be an organization that offers the opportunity for career development and enhancing one's social well-being. The benefits I derived from the internships, seminars, and mentor-ship programmes are overwhelming. I have been empowered and well placed by these programmes to fit well in a myriad of social contexts. My interpersonal, communication and time management skills have all been well shaped through my participation in the above mentioned programmes by EPI.

Further to the above, EPI afforded me the opportunity to work with the organization (EPI) after my bachelor degree as a National Service Personnel during which period I further acquired skills essential for my career development.

Currently reading a Master programme in Business Administration at University of Agder in Norway, I am strongly convinced that EPI has contributed immensely to building me for life. I must honestly confess that I have had a life transforming experience with EPI. It is certainly good that I met this organization of charity! I am proud to be part of the EPI family!
