

KENNEDY AMANKWAH

I am Kennedy Amankwah, a graduate of the University of Ghana, Accra. I pursued a four-year degree in BSc. Administration with Accounting as my major.

Being a beneficiary of Educational Pathways International (EPI) has been a blessing in all spheres of my life. Financially, EPI provided me with a comprehensive scholarship package. I was privileged to enjoy this blessing from my first year till I completed, and I could not be more grateful.

EPI through our country Director made sure myself and other beneficiaries were taken through series of important life skills that will help me when I was in school and is going to help me in the corporate world. EPI kept me on my toes in my academics and this showed in my performance.

I have always been someone with a business mindset and as accounting happens to be the language of business and with my future aspiration of becoming an auditor, I decided to pursue accounting in the university to give me the platform on which to build towards achieving my future goals.

After completing my degree in Accounting, my immediate career goal is writing one of the Accounting professional exams either in AACA or ICA in order to become a qualified Accountant or from there, with the grace of God continue onwards to achieve my future goal of being an Auditor.

Growing up in a small suburb in Accra, born into a family of six children to an average mother with no father, life was a challenge. It is just by the Grace of God and through the timely scholarship from EPI that I can call myself a university graduate today.

By God's Grace when I achieve my future aspirations, I intend going back to my roots to help in my own small way. I plan on collaborating with other resource persons to set up both scholarship opportunities for brilliant and needy students as well as vocational schools for those who could not continue their education so they also get a skill that can fetch them money for them to make a living. This and others I plan on doing for my community and I believe it will go a long way to help mother Ghana as a whole.

Lastly, I want to show my appreciation to Educational Pathways International, the board, the donors, the workers and all those associated with the scheme. I say may the good Lord bless and replenish all you have given to help some of us to achieve our dreams of having a tertiary education. I pray that EPI grows even bigger so it can continue giving such opportunities to even more students.
