

ROSE GYESI

My name is Rose Nyarkoah Gyesei. I studied Geography at the University of Ghana. During my second year in school, I got enrolled on the Educational Pathways International (EPI) scholarship program and joined the wonderful family. Ever since, EPI has contributed enormously in making my undergraduate education a success. Apart from the financial assistance I received as a beneficiary, I also attained excellent life-time skills not only in academics but all spheres of life. Today, I can boast of good public speaking skills, time management and goal settings amongst others that I have acquired from our regular trainings and interactive meeting sections of EPI.

These supports have heightened my aspirations in life and renewed my hope for brighter future. It has always been my goal to be a Professor in the field of Geography, thus having a bachelor's degree in geography is a first step in the right direction. Geography involves the study of the earth physical features, its systems, the related interactions with the inhabitants within it as well as the spatial organizations. By researching in this field and grasping a better understanding of the earth phenomena, I would be able to contribute to efforts towards addressing existing social, economic, gender, inequalities, environmental hazards such as flooding, mass wasting, waste management, deforestation among others that we face in our developing societies and Ghana as a whole.

Not only this, being a Professor will enable me to impart knowledge to students, other individuals and environmental organizations. Again, becoming a Geographer will enable me to contribute to the spatial planning, environmental policy making and the spatial development of the country, Ghana.

To me, EPI is not only a charitable organization but a home of nurturing and empowering needy but brilliant students to become better people for today's world.

My heart-filled appreciation goes to EPI for this great life changing opportunity to me.

With this impact, I can be able to achieve my dreams and goals for the betterment of my community and the country at large. I am forever grateful. Long live EPI, their good works and to all its donors.
