

DR. SARA AFARI-BAIDOO

My name is Sarah Afari-Bidoo, a graduate from the Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST), Ghana, where I offered a 6-year programme in Doctor of Pharmacy.

I was awarded this comprehensive scholarship by Educational Pathways International (EPI) in 2019 and 4 years down the line, it has been truly astounding. The scholarship scheme was not only beneficial financially, it provided an avenue for me to interact with different students of high intellect who are also beneficiaries of EPI, and this was a very good opportunity for me to establish good social networking. Secondly, the varying training sessions we had with our Program Director has helped me polish my skills in Public Speaking, Leadership Roles, Employable Competences, Entrepreneurship, CV Writing, Time Management, Preparation For Interviews, Report Writing and many more. Also, upon receiving this scholarship one skill I learnt very well, was how to effectively and efficiently manage money.

I chose to offer the Doctor of Pharmacy programme because of my sole aim to help the human race in the sector of health. Pharmacy has given me an opportunity to interact with patients with respect to their health concerns and needs. I also have the ability to monitor the progress of their varying conditions while on the prescribed medication. In some circumstances as well, I am involved in the extemporaneous preparation of their medications.

My goal now is to work as a Clinical and Community Pharmacist. My reason for this choice is because, upon undergoing varying internships in the different sectors of pharmacy (that is; regulatory, marketing, industry, community, research and hospital pharmacy) I have realized that these two sectors, resonate very well with the goal I want to achieve as a Pharmacist in the sector of health.

With that being said I would like to use this opportunity to thank the entire Educational Pathways International team for their dedication towards our growth and development as beneficiaries of this wonderful scholarship scheme.
