

MESHACH ACQUAH

The opportunity to pursue higher education is something I've never taken for granted. Being selected as a beneficiary of the Educational Pathways International (EPI) Scholarship was more than just an academic boost. It was a moment that affirmed my goals, my potential, and the value of hard work. It allowed me to continue my journey at Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST), where I pursued a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, majoring in Accounting. My name is Meshach Acquah. I graduated with first class honours.

My decision to focus on Accounting was rooted in a belief that effective financial systems are central to national growth and institutional accountability. I've always been driven by the desire to understand how economies function at both the micro and macro levels, and how strong financial management can influence real, sustainable development.

Throughout my studies, EPI served as more than just a scholarship, it became a source of inspiration. It challenged me to not only excel academically but also to grow as a person. With the peace of mind that financial stability offered, I was able to fully immerse myself in learning, build valuable relationships, and develop key life skills such as discipline, responsibility, and resilience.

Looking ahead, my ambition is to become a Chartered Accountant and, over time, transition into financial consulting. I want to work with both private companies and public institutions to promote financial transparency and efficiency. I also hope to further my education in finance or public policy, so I can be part of shaping strategies that promote economic empowerment and national development.

Beyond my personal goals, I feel a deep responsibility to give back. I plan to invest in the next generation by mentoring students from underserved communities, promoting financial literacy among youth, and supporting initiatives that expand access to quality education. These efforts reflect the values that EPI has instilled in me; service, leadership, and equity.

To Educational Pathways International, I express my deepest gratitude. Your support has not only opened doors for me but has also inspired me to hold the door open for others. I carry this experience with pride and purpose, and I am committed to using it to make a lasting difference wherever I go.
