

RAMATU MOHAMMED

I am Ramatu Mohammed, a graduate of Medical Laboratory Science from Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST), Ghana.

My journey through university was made significantly easier and more meaningful through the support of the Educational Pathways International (EPI) Scholarship Programme. Since joining EPI, I have benefited not only financially but also personally and academically. The scholarship relieved me of a major financial burden, allowing me to focus on my studies and personal development. EPI's continuous encouragement, mentorship, and belief in students like me have helped shape my confidence, resilience, and determination to succeed.

I chose to study Medical Laboratory Science because of my passion for healthcare and my desire to contribute to accurate disease diagnosis and patient care. Medical Laboratory Scientists play a critical role in healthcare delivery by providing reliable laboratory results that guide treatment decisions. This vital role inspired me to pursue the program and dedicate myself to excellence in the field.

My career goal is to become a highly skilled Medical Laboratory Scientist who contributes to improving healthcare delivery through quality laboratory services, research, and continuous professional development. In the future, I hope to further my education through postgraduate studies and specialize in an area of laboratory medicine that will allow me to make an even greater impact in healthcare.

As a graduate and beneficiary of the EPI Scholarship Program, I am committed to giving back to my community and Ghana. I intend to participate in health education initiatives, support disease prevention campaigns, promote awareness of healthy lifestyles, and contribute to strengthening healthcare services. I also hope to inspire and mentor young people, especially those from disadvantaged backgrounds, to pursue higher education and achieve their goals.

I am sincerely grateful to EPI for investing in my education and future. The support I received has played a significant role in my academic journey and personal growth. EPI's commitment to empowering students through education creates opportunities that extend far beyond the classroom and positively impact families, communities, and the nation as a whole. I will always be proud to be an EPI beneficiary and now EPI Alumnus and will strive to uphold the values of excellence, service, and integrity that the program promotes.
